In this list the following definitions will apply

Date added	The date in this field is the date the marketing name was added to the Australian Fish Names List. The term “provisional name” means that the name has been conditionally approved by the Fish Names Committee and is currently undergoing a public consultation phase. An entry in this field of 1Jan 2002 means that this name was in existence when the list was created.
Scientific Name	The internationally recognised binomial name by which the particular species is known. Each binomial name, or binomen, consists of a genus name and a species name. These two names are distinguished from other text by the use of italic typeface. The genus name always begins with a capital letter; the species name is always spelt with all lower case letters. There is one scientific name per species.
Standard Name	The name by which the species can be commercially traded in Australia. There can be only one valid standard name in Australia per species. This may be different to the marketing name used in other countries. In Australia, the Fish Names Committee approves standard names for fish. Unique standard names cover one species whereas standard group names (see below) cover a group of closely related species.
Brand Name	The registered name used for a product by a company or business.
Standard Group Name or Family Name	Standard group names cover two or more species. They can be used as the default marketing name for a number of similar species, possibly each having a unique marketing name. In the Fish Names List, this field contains the family or higher level group to which this species belongs.
CAAB Code	CAAB stands for ‘Codes for Australian Aquatic Biota’. CAAB codes consist of eight digits and each species is assigned a unique CAAB number. This number is unique to Australia. For more information on CAAB, see http://www.marine.csiro.au/caab .
Imported Only	Species that are marked with an "I" are imported species to Australia and do not occur locally.
